IN HANOI, CHANGE HAS ARRIVED

THERE ARE MOMENTS WHEN CHANGE FEELS ALMOST TANGIBLE – IN HANOI THAT MOMENT IS NOW

Anamika Komath

Across 14 pilot wards, years of advocacy, partnership and persistence are beginning to translate into something very real: businesses are closing, traders are preparing for new livelihoods, and in two wards, the dog and cat meat trade (DCMT) has already ended.

28 DCMT establishments have now permanently ceased operations, with closures verified and monitored. More than 30,000 dogs and cats are estimated to have been spared from the supply chain.

And this is only the beginning.

What makes this progress so meaningful is how it is happening. Rather than simply asking traders to walk away from their businesses, Soi Dog and its partners are helping them find a way forward.

Nguyen Dinh Ha and his wife, Tran Thi Anh, with Soi Dog's, Linh D.M. Ha. Their slaughterhouse, which operated for more than 10 years, has now permanently closed following their participation in the transition programme

A NEW BEGINNING

For traders who have spent years relying on DCMT for their income, transition is a major decision. There are businesses to wind down, investments to recover and families to support.

That is why livelihood transition sits at the heart of this project.

So far, 29 establishments have enrolled in the programme, with 17 currently progressing towards completing their transition in the coming months. Participants are given time to wind down their businesses while exploring new skills and opportunities that can support their families in the future.

Participants come together at a Livelihood Transition workshop in Hanoi, delivered in partnership with local authorities and SBCC Vietnam

For Ms Phuong, one of the traders taking part, the decision to transition had been on her mind for some time.

"I understand the risks, especially around disease and food safety. But when your entire income is tied to this work, stopping immediately is very difficult."

Now, her daughter is also scheduled to take part in vocational training, helping the family build a new livelihood together.

It is a reminder that transition is not just about ending one business. It is about creating the confidence to begin something new.

And that confidence is growing.

At Soi Dog's fourth Livelihood Transition Training Conference, interest from traders was significantly stronger than at previous sessions. Experts shared practical business ideas, from Korean-style food concepts to popular beverage models, while legal and administrative specialists explained the steps involved in registering a new business and managing tax requirements.

The message was simple: there is a future beyond DCMT, and there are people ready to help make it possible.

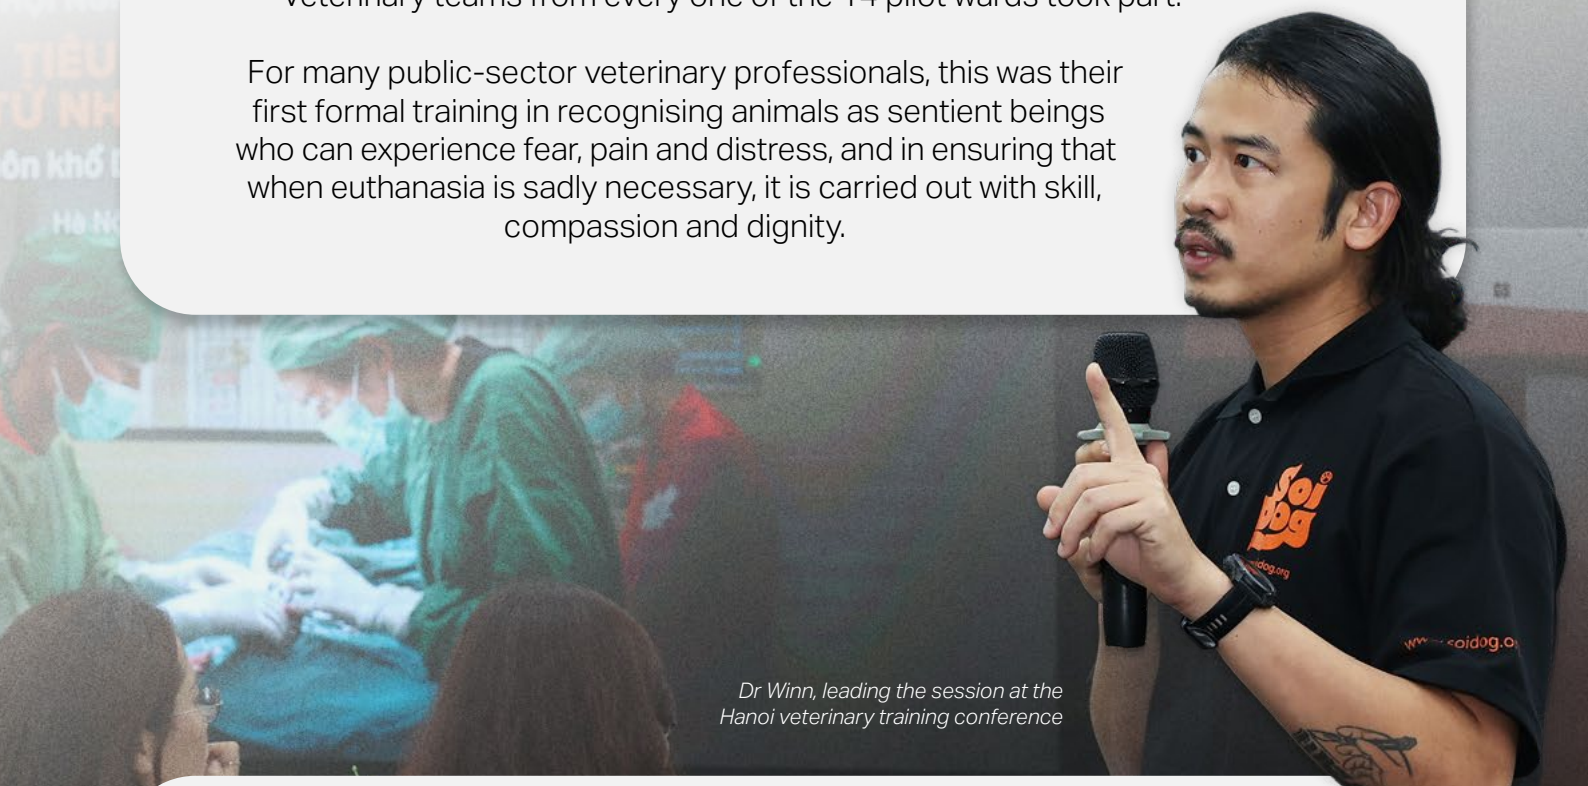
CHANGE THAT REACHES FAR BEYOND A BUSINESS

This work is also changing something deeper – the systems around animal welfare and public health.

On 21 May, Soi Dog helped bring more than 58 veterinary professionals, government officials, private practitioners, media representatives and international experts together in Hanoi for a landmark training conference on humane euthanasia.

Veterinary teams from every one of the 14 pilot wards took part.

For many public-sector veterinary professionals, this was their first formal training in recognising animals as sentient beings who can experience fear, pain and distress, and in ensuring that when euthanasia is sadly necessary, it is carried out with skill, compassion and dignity.



Dr Winn, leading the session at the Hanoi veterinary training conference

Led by Soi Dog Veterinary Manager, Dr Winn, the programme covered animal welfare, humane decision-making, technical procedures, Vietnam's legal framework and the wellbeing of veterinary staff.

The planned four-hour session became a seven-hour programme as participants continued engaging with the material.

Each delegate also received a Vietnamese-language Standard Operating Procedure manual, giving veterinary teams a practical resource they can use long after the conference ended.

This may sound like a small detail, but it is exactly how lasting change is built. Training one professional means better knowledge can reach an entire community. Strengthening one system creates the foundations for many more animals to be protected in the future.

Venerable Thich Thanh Huan, head abbot of Phap Van Pagoda, giving a sermon on the karmic illustration reflecting the Buddhist perspective on the dog and cat meat trade

AND THE NEXT GENERATION IS WATCHING

Perhaps one of the most exciting parts of this work is that the change is not stopping with today's decision-makers.

Through Soi Dog's youth ambassador campaign, 32 universities have now been engaged, bringing young people into conversations around animal welfare, rabies prevention and responsible pet ownership.

Five major pagodas in Hanoi are also continuing to share awareness messages during their Dharma Talks, reaching communities through trusted local voices.

These young people and community leaders will help shape the Hanoi of tomorrow. By giving them knowledge today, we are helping ensure that the progress being made now can continue for generations.

And Hanoi is already attracting attention from elsewhere in Vietnam.

Several other provinces have been closely following the success of the pilot project and drawing lessons from its experience.

What began as a pilot across 14 wards could therefore become something much bigger.

YOU HELPED MAKE THIS POSSIBLE

None of this happened overnight.

This progress is the result of so many people coming together behind a shared vision. From our dedicated supporters, whose generosity makes this work possible, to the Hanoi People's Committee, government veterinary authorities, our local partner Social and Behaviour Change Communications (SBCC), pagodas, universities, communities and, importantly, the traders themselves, every part of this partnership has helped turn years of advocacy into real, lasting change.

It has taken patience. It has taken listening. And it has taken the belief that lasting change is strongest when people are supported to be part of it.

Every donation, every conversation, every person who has stood behind Soi Dog's vision has helped build the foundations for this change.

There is still work to do. But for the first time, the future we have been working towards is no longer just a vision.

We can see it taking shape in Hanoi.

And together, we are helping build a safer, healthier and more compassionate future for animals and communities.

Thank you for being part of it.

GOING THE EXTRA MILE FOR ANIMALS

FROM CYCLING ACROSS THE WORLD TO WILD CAMPING IN THE SCOTTISH HIGHLANDS, SOI DOG SUPPORTERS HAVE PUSHED THEMSELVES TO THE LIMIT TO RAISE VITAL FUNDS FOR ANIMALS IN NEED

Gina Churchill-Straffon

Every fundraiser has a story behind it. Sometimes, it starts with a love for one special animal; sometimes, it grows into an adventure that spans continents. For Olympic and her owner Denise, and for cycling duo Joscha and Xenia, supporting Soi Dog Foundation meant taking on challenges that pushed them far beyond their comfort zones.

From the Scottish Highlands to the winding roads of Kyrgyzstan, these incredible supporters have gone the extra mile, quite literally, to help animals in need.

OLYMPIC: FROM THE STREETS OF THAILAND TO THE SCOTTISH HIGHLANDS

Once a nervous puppy facing a difficult start in life, Olympic has come a long way. After battling parvovirus, she is now thriving in the UK, growing in confidence and discovering the joy of a life filled with love, adventure and new experiences.

For Denise, Olympic's journey is a reminder of just how much a rescue dog's life can change. Together, they have found a wonderful way to give something back – taking on adventures, raising awareness and fundraising for the animals who are still waiting for their second chance.

In December 2025, Olympic and Denise embarked on an ambitious adventure along Scotland's famous West Highland Way. The 154km trail winds through some of the country's most spectacular landscapes, with the pair planning to wild camp along the route, where temperatures can plunge well below freezing.

The challenge was the culmination of months of preparation. Together, Olympic and Denise set themselves the goal of walking 1,200 miles in the months leading up to their Highland adventure!

But the biggest achievement was the impact their adventures had beyond the trail. Olympic and Denise raised an incredible £2,230, while Denise has continued to support Soi Dog by organising raffles and spreading the word on social media.

Olympic may once have been a nervous street dog, but today she is living her best life – exploring the world alongside the person who gave her a home, while helping other animals along the way.

Follow Olympic's adventures on Facebook and see where this remarkable rescue pup goes to next!

PEDAL FOR PAWS: CYCLING HALFWAY AROUND THE WORLD FOR STREET DOGS

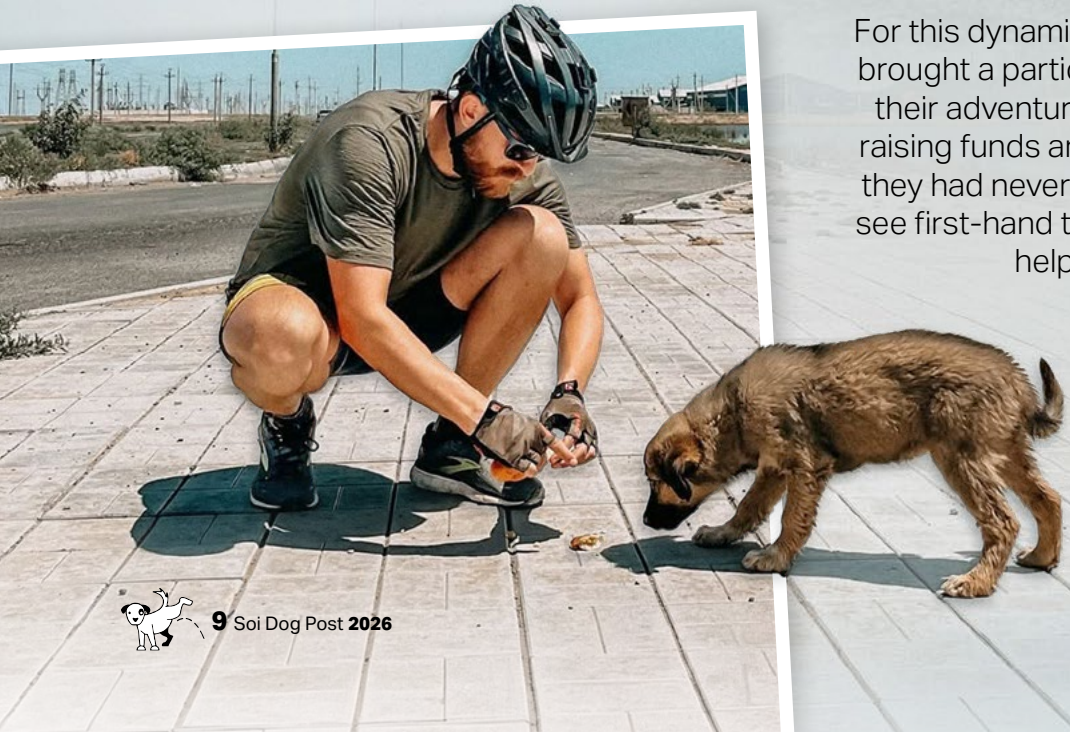
When Joscha and Xenia set off from Berlin, bound for Phuket, they were embarking on a journey few would dare to attempt.

The pair cycled more than 24,300 kilometres through 30 countries, crossing continents and facing difficult terrain, uncertain routes and challenging weather along the way. Their mission? To raise vital funds and awareness for Soi Dog's CNVR (Catch, Neuter, Vaccinate, Return) programme.

There was just one small detail: neither of them had much cycling experience!

What followed was an extraordinary adventure across more than half the world. Along the way, Joscha and Xenia encountered the generosity and hospitality of people in communities across the countries they travelled through. Their shared compassion for animals was a constant thread throughout their travels, leading them to visit shelters and meet street dogs who sometimes joined them for parts of their route.

Earlier this year, the pair finally arrived at the Gill Dalley Sanctuary, where staff and volunteers gave them a warm welcome before they embarked on four weeks of volunteering.



For this dynamic duo, arriving at Soi Dog brought a particularly meaningful end to their adventure. They had spent years raising funds and awareness for animals they had never met, and now they could see first-hand the lives their support was helping to change.

Their story shows just how far a passion for animals can take you, and how that passion can help us continue our work to give vulnerable animals the second chance they deserve. We are so grateful to Joscha and Xenia for their incredible dedication and for going the distance for animals in need.

You can read more about Pedal for Paws and their incredible story in the November 2024 issue of the Soi Dog Post.

INSPIRED TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

You don't have to cycle across continents or trek through the Highlands to support Soi Dog. From sponsored walks and marathons to bake-offs, quizzes and everything in between, fundraisers of all shapes and sizes can make a real difference to the dogs and cats who need it most.

Why not turn your next challenge, hobby or big idea into a fundraiser? Every kilometre, cupcake and contribution counts.

ADOPTION CORNER: WHITE LIE EDITION

MEET THE ADOPTABLE SOI DOGS WHOSE NAMES DON'T QUITE ADD UP!

Amy Bryant

Estimated age: 6 years

Size: 19kg

Personality: Confident and independent

Adopt Me

WALKER

It's time we set the record straight. Some of our dogs are lying to you with their names, like Walker – who, as you can see here, is actually the one being walked!

Walker was rescued from an empty house, where he'd been caged, chained and abandoned outside. Now recovered from his ordeal, he's ready to discover what a real, loving home feels like.

Independent by nature, the quickest way to win handsome Walker's heart is through treats and, of course, plenty of walks.

Estimated age: 8 years

Size: 14kg

Personality: Friendly and adventurous

Adopt Me

YETI

Contrary to her name, Yeti is not an elusive snow monster; she's a senior soi dog who's as warm and friendly as can be!

Yeti was rushed to the shelter after being hit by a car. Unfortunately, she lost her right front leg in the accident, but she didn't lose her ~~abominable~~ indomitable spirit.

Though she moves a little slower than her four-legged friends, Yeti still loves her strolls, trusting everyone she meets along the way. She would make a wonderful family member.

PLUMPANTS

Estimated age: 6 years

Size: 24kg

Personality: Gentle and sometimes shy

Adopt Me

Next up we have Plumpants who – it turns out – isn't wearing any trousers at all!

Plumpants was transferred to Soi Dog from a government pound as a puppy. He was adopted soon after but sadly returned through no fault of his own.

Understandably a little cautious after so much disruption in his life, Plumpants can take time to adjust to new people and places. However, earning the trust of this gentle giant is absolutely worth the wait. What he lacks in clothing, he more than makes up for in personality.

PATCHY

Estimated age: 7 years

Size: 20kg

Personality: Confident and curious

Adopt Me

Wait – this soi dog is telling the truth! Named after the distinctive pattern of his fur, Patchy has earned his title fair and square.

No one is quite sure what happened to Patchy, but he arrived at Soi Dog with a severe leg wound that thankfully avoided amputation.

Today, he's a larger-than-life character who enjoys diving into the shelter pool, sniffing every inch of his walk and trying to figure out how tennis balls work.

Shelter life is wearing on Patchy, and he'd love to find a family.

While our rescues may be partial to a little white lie, the truth is that they're still very good dogs who deserve loving homes, so if you're looking to adopt, please visit soidog.org/adopt today.

THE CALL THAT LED TO RESCUE

Vanessa Jakoby

It started with one of the many calls our front office team receives every day. A dog had been in an accident on a busy road, not far from our sanctuary in Phuket.

Our rescue officer rushed to the scene and found a young puppy lying by the roadside. She was wearing a collar, but there was no owner in sight. Despite the traffic passing by, it was a kind-hearted person out for a morning run who stopped and called for help.

We later named her Tonpun. At our dog hospital, our veterinary team discovered just how badly she had been injured. She had a broken leg, multiple pelvic fractures, bruising to her lungs, and a severe spinal injury that had left all four legs extremely weak.

Her treatment involved surgery, physiotherapy, hydrotherapy, and close monitoring from our veterinary and nursing teams. Three times a week, Tonpun attended hydrotherapy sessions to help rebuild her strength and mobility. Despite being a Siberian Husky mix, she wasn't the biggest fan of water! Thankfully, with a little encouragement and a few extra treats, she pulled through!

With the most intensive stage of her rehabilitation behind her, Tonpun now heads outside for daily walks with one of her favourite nurses. She walks so well these days that sometimes she even tries to run, taking her nurse along for the ride!

Her recovery isn't over yet. Tonpun will continue with rehabilitation and daily walks, and we'll be right there celebrating every step forward with her.

Long before Tonpun reached our hospital, her rescue began with a phone call.

Our front office team (pictured below) are often the first people to hear about animals like Tonpun. Working around the clock, they receive reports about dogs and cats who are injured, sick or in danger, gathering the information our rescue teams need to respond.

Tonpun is just one of the many animals whose journey to safety began at the other end of one of those calls. In a recent episode of Soi Dog Scoops, we went behind the scenes with our front office team to find out what it takes to be on the frontline for animals in need, 24 hours a day.

Every call is the start of a journey, and for animals like Tonpun, it can be the beginning of a second chance. Tune in to watch the full episode here.

If you come across a sick or injured animal in Phuket or Bangkok, you can help start that journey too. Find out how to report an animal in need on the Soi Dog website here.

SPONSORSHIP HELPED THEM FIND THEIR FOREVER HOMES

THE SPONSOR ANIMALS WHO FOUND THEIR HAPPILY EVER AFTER

Callum Williams

For many of our sponsor animals, their time at the sanctuary is just the beginning of their journey. It's a place of safety, where they can receive veterinary care, rehabilitation, patience and the love they need to recover from their past and begin looking towards a brighter future.

For some, that journey ends with something truly special – a forever home.

Today, we're celebrating two of our sponsor animals whose journeys led them all the way home this year.

REUNGJAI

Found Her Forever Home: March 2026

When Reungjai arrived at the Gill Dalley Sanctuary in 2017, she was just a puppy. A road traffic accident had left her with multiple, severe fractures, and her right hind leg had to be amputated.

Her injuries were life-changing and she would require ongoing specialist care for the rest of her life. Finding her a forever home was not going to be easy.

With patience and specialist treatment, Reungjai recovered and grew into the wonderful dog everyone at the sanctuary came to know and adore. As one of the faces of our sponsorship programme, she also captured the hearts of people far beyond Phuket.

That is when her life changed forever. One of Reungjai's long-term sponsors decided it was time for her to have a home of her own. He opened his heart and welcomed Reungjai into his family.

Today, after more than eight years at the sanctuary, Reungjai is living happily in the USA, surrounded by the loving family she has always deserved. While she is deeply missed by everyone here at Soi Dog, we couldn't be happier that she has finally found her forever home.

DAMTATO

Found Her Forever Home: August 2026

When Damtato arrived at the sanctuary in 2024, her life had changed in an instant. A road traffic accident caused devastating injuries to her left eye and leg. Sadly, neither could be saved.

Learning to live with such life-changing disabilities was not easy, and Damtato needed time, patience and specialist care to adjust to her new life.

But under the dedicated care of our veterinary team, she slowly began to recover. Before long, it became clear that her injuries were not going to stop this determined little cat from living life to the fullest.

Damtato soon became a much-loved character at the sanctuary. Her one big eye curiously watched everyone who passed her cat suite, and as her confidence and trust grew, she would often curl up in her carer's lap for a cosy nap.

As a popular face of our sponsorship programme, she touched the hearts of supporters around the world. And this year, Damtato received the happy ending she had been waiting for.

She has now found a loving family and a forever home in the beautiful city of Chaing Mai, where she can begin an exciting new chapter as part of a family.

THANK YOU FOR MAKING THESE HAPPY ENDINGS POSSIBLE

All of us here at Soi Dog would like to thank our incredible sponsors for being part of Reungjai and Damtato's journeys.

Your support has helped provide the safety, care and love they needed during their time at the sanctuary, and helped give them the chance to one day take that next step into a forever home.

While some of our dogs and cats are lucky enough to find a loving family, many more are still waiting for their own happy ending.

Sponsorship helps give these animals the ongoing care and support they need, so when the right opportunity comes along, they are ready for their next chapter.

If you'd like to help change the life of a dog or cat still waiting for their happy ending, start your sponsorship journey today.

REMEMBERING SERUMO, OCCIA, MAZAKI AND PALOKA

While this year has brought some wonderful new beginnings, we have also had to say goodbye to four very special members of our sponsorship family – Serumo, Occia, Mazaki and Paloka.

Every sponsor animal at the Gill Dalley Sanctuary has a story of their own. But together, they represent the journeys of hundreds of dogs and cats who have come to us in need of safety, care and a second chance.

Thanks to the kindness of our incredible sponsors, Serumo, Occia, Mazaki and Paloka were able to spend their later years surrounded by comfort, love and dedicated care.

They may no longer be with us, but they will always hold a special place in our hearts. We take comfort in knowing that, with their sponsors beside them, they knew kindness, peace and care during their time at the sanctuary.

CONNECTED TO CARE: HOW NTT DATA AND CISCO POWER SOI DOG'S WORK

Technology might not be the first thing that comes to mind when you think about animal rescue. But behind every animal we treat, medical record we update and difficult case we tackle, it helps our teams work efficiently and deliver better care.

Since 2017, NTT DATA and Cisco have provided vital digital infrastructure behind the scenes. With NTT DATA's expertise and Cisco's generous donation of equipment, Soi Dog now has a faster, more secure network across our rescue, veterinary and operational sites.

So, what does that mean for our animals?

It means our vets can access and update vital medical records from anywhere on site, while our team can quickly consult specialists in Bangkok and beyond when a difficult case comes through our doors.

These may seem like small things, but they can make a big difference. Reliable technology helps our teams work faster, stay connected and, ultimately, get more animals the care they need.

As Soi Dog continues to grow, NTT DATA and Cisco are helping us get ready for whatever comes next. We're incredibly grateful for their expertise, generosity, and commitment to helping us save and improve the lives of dogs and cats.

Their support does more than keep us connected – it helps keep life-saving care moving.

BREWING SUPPORT FOR DOGS IN NEED: FETCH COFFEE ROASTERS

In 2019, Fetch Coffee Roasters owner Sarah Wolstenholme Witter turned her long-standing connection to Soi Dog into a business built with purpose. Having supported Soi Dog for several years and even adopted a soi dog herself, named Bangchee, Sarah knew that, even if she could not be in Thailand volunteering, she could still make a difference from afar. So when she launched Fetch Roasters, she made giving back part of the company's foundation, choosing Soi Dog as one of the causes at its heart.

With every bag of coffee sold, Fetch Roasters donates 50¢ to help dogs in need, funding vital rescue, treatment and long-term care. Their annual 'Name a Roast' competition also celebrates an adoptable dog, with the winner inspiring a special blend in their honour. Last year's was Rakpla, who has since been adopted and is now living his best life in Germany!

Through Fetch Roasters, Sarah has found a wonderful way to combine great coffee with kindness. Every cup helps give vulnerable dogs the care, comfort and second chance they deserve.

PICKING UP WITH PURPOSE: HUDDY B. GOOD

Huddy B. Good (Huddybags) was founded in 2025 by David and Dana, long-term supporters who wanted to turn an everyday dog-walking essential into something that could make a difference.

Inspired by their own rescue dog, Huddy, they created cruelty-free poop bags with a bigger purpose: helping to end the dog and cat meat trade. Their bags are not made in countries where dogs are still bred for meat – a commitment that reflects how strongly David and Dana feel about Soi Dog's work to end the trade.

They also generously donate 10% of their profits to rescue organisations, helping turn something as simple as picking up after your dog into a positive act for animals in need.
